

AACSB International Member Benefits and Services

AACSB International membership provides numerous member services, resources, and opportunities to participate in programs focused on institutional and academic quality and continuous improvement. Member services are designed to meet expectations and quality standards, and meet the most important criteria for member satisfaction.

Networking

Interact with AACSB International's growing global network of more than 1,000 management education stakeholders representing over 70 nations.

Build relationships through AACSB's Affinity Group Program which provides opportunities for members to network with colleagues based on various areas of interest, aspects of business school activity or employee group. Enhance your member experience...grow your professional network

Online Membership Directory

Link to deans and key representatives of AACSB International's membership

Business school profiles are searchable by geographic location, faculty size, tuition and fees, operating budgets, Carnegie classification, accreditation status, and field of degrees awarded.

Events

The AACSB International conference and seminar calendar includes over 50 event programs on three continents. Receive the discounted member rate and enjoy the opportunity to network, reflect, plan and strategize with management education peers from around the world.

Data and Information Resources

Benefit from the world's most comprehensive database pertaining to business schools, their programs, faculty and students.

Access AACSB's online resource centers for information, tools and discussion on hot topics for management educators including Ethics, Rankings, Doctoral Shortage, and Assessment.

Research salary information obtained through AACSB's annual survey on business school faculty and administrators salaries. Participating schools receive aggregate survey results for free and can access custom reports for comparison groups of their choice.

Receive handy statistical reports, including the AACSB Guide to Business Education, THE standard reference for key data and statistics.

Gain subscription rights to AACSB's DataDirect service. For a small annual fee, your school will have access to a wealth of comparable data to support planning, decision-making and benchmarking.

Information about members that provide data is available for search and comparison on the AACSB website, an increasingly popular destination for students, employers, faculty and media interested in business schools.

Communications

Published by AACSB, BizEd- the magazine for business education focuses exclusively on cutting edge management education topics. Business educators and those involved in management education turn to its award-winning pages for emerging concepts, innovative products and helpful services. Two subscriptions to BizEd are included in annual membership dues.

BizSchoolJobs, is AACSB's web-based career marketplace, the premiere online source for management and business school faculty careers. With discounted rates for members, BizSchoolJobs is budget friendly and easy to use, and your ad appears online immediately! Classified ads placed in BizEd receive free BizSchoolJobs online posting.

Published bi-monthly, eNEWSLINE is member's electronic connection to AACSB. Articles include highlights of member schools, including awards and grants received, announcements of new deans, updates on AACSB conferences and seminars, affinity group meetings and links to current surveys and reports.

Keep your colleagues up to date on institutional news with discounted mailing lists. Lists are available at a discounted member rate for one time use to your select AACSB International audience. Choose from all membership, only educational membership, business accredited schools, or accredited accounting program administrators.

AACSB International member services and resources are tailored to your specific needs, whether your organization is a collegiate business administration or accounting school, division or department, or a business organization with strategic interests in collegiate management education. For more information please contact membership@aacsb.edu.